Faith Matters when contemplating beginnings:

In the Beginning God created the cosmos.

He said, It needs to start with a Big Bang.

She said, It needs to have a manageable number of interacting components.

He said, It needs to have the connections to build planets and stars.

She said, Those stars should be hot so that I can cook with them.

He said, The universe needs to be big so those stars don't get caught in traffic.

She said, We need some house rules like gravity and speed limits for light.

He said, We need to build planets where creatures can interact and build stuff.

She said, We need to outfit those planets with houses and gardens.

He said, We need to make creatures that can appreciate what we are doing.

She said, We need to create creatures that can further our work.

He said, We need to get and give feedback to these creatures.

She said, We need to help these creatures from getting too deeply into trouble.

They said, Son, we need your help.
